Teachings of St Kuriakose Elias Chavara (1805-1871)

Children, you are God's investment in the hands of your parents.

Trust your mother, God Will hear your mother's request like the baby's request.

Laziness fosters evil habits.

Good friends will make you good.

Regular reading of good books and meditating on it will illumine the mind.

Your attire and sanctity ought to be according to your age.

Your profession must be according to your knowledge and age.

Do not be the cause for your parents yo shed tears on account of you.

The humble man is the greatest among men.

You belong to God and you should be given back to God.

Pursue the path of truth and justice.

Keeping bad books is like hiding fire in hay.

128 AFTERWORD

Dr Fr George Edayadiyil, CMI
Chancellor

I take great pride in penning this message on the occasion of the Golden Jubilee of CHRIST (Deemed to be University) and wish to recall the incredible journey that the institution has taken in the past five decades. From its humble beginnings as an establishment catering to the pre-university requirements of the students of Bengaluru, the college has grown over the years, offering a world-class platform to students aspiring to be graduates in a plethora of specialisations through rigorous training, industrial exposure and research. While the initial goal was to provide the best education to the local population, the institution did not take long to emerge as a noteworthy establishment in south India and within a few years, one of the country's premier institutions offering educational opportunities not just for Indians but students of other nationalities as well. We are proud of the contributions of our dedicated staff members- teaching and non-teaching, our students, alumni and well-wishers, who have all, in the last 50 years, changed the course of the Institution's history. True to the vision of our founding father, St.Kuriakose Elias Chavara, the CMI congregation has stood by their commitment to education and nation building and has been instrumental in making every milestone in the last five decades, relevant and significant. I thank my predecessors and every other CMI member who have been, directly or otherwise, associated with this temple of knowledge over the years, for their invaluable contributions and countless man-hours spent in polishing this gem of an Institution and making it what it is.

While we take pride in the state-of-the-art facilities provided on all our campuses, the memory of the modest inception of the Institution shall always remain with us as a constant reminder that our greatest asset is our staff and students and I am proud that we have always upheld our motto of "Excellence and Service". By calling to mind our successful journey so far, I also wish to remind you of the miles to go and heights to be conquered yet and I am sure the CHRIST family shall take the torch forward, with their heads held high and hearts ever strong.

I congratulate the Management, Staff and Students of CHRIST (Deemed to be University) on this auspicious occasion and thank God Almighty for His grace and blessings.

Col Dr Fr Thomas C Mathew
Vice Chancellor

“Destiny is not a matter of chance, it is a matter of choice; it is not a thing to be waited for, it is a thing to be achieved”. - William Jennings Bryan

It is a very momentous occasion for the CMI as the golden jubilee of CHRIST (Deemed to be University) evokes memories. As we review the history of 50 years, we have enough reason to thank God for all his blessings. It is an occasion to recall the marvellous journey from its very humble beginning on 15 July 1969 as an affiliated college, inaugurating the one year Pre University Programme with the vision of ‘Excellence and Service’ and four programmes, 379 students, 20 teaching and 8 non-teaching staff. This is also an opportunity to introspect and reflect on the achievements and laurels we have gained and to garner strength to meet the challenges and goals that lie ahead. The festivities planned are spread throughout the year which will make this year a memorable one in the history of CHRIST. Much has been achieved, but much more remains to be done. We need to continue the legacy of good work given to us by our pioneers with dedication and commitment. I salute the Fathers and Collaborators who have laboured for the development of this institution to meet the continuing need of offering quality education to the masses. Certainly this is not a celebration of the buildings but of people who made it come alive. Holding strong to the vision of Excellence and Service, this golden jubilee year is another step towards making our existence meaningful.

I seek the Almighty’s blessings on the Management, Staff and Students in their endeavours for the coming years.

Let’s take pride in how far we have come and have faith in how far we can go!

Best Wishes

Dr Anil Joseph Pinto
Registrar

We have seen many minds being shaped by CHRIST the Institution and many more innovative ideas shaping the Institution with the big and small steps that we took in the last 50 years. Ushering in the 50th year in 2018 therefore brings us great memories of the past and bright dreams for the future. The institution takes great pride in tracing the incredible journey that has chiselled out a promising future for all of us. It is intriguing at times to travel back in time to discover how the many apprehensions we have had were the seeds of the dreams realised today.

The dynamism and positivity of the people who entered the Institution and contributed their mite has been its strength. Upholding its core values, the institution has always kept the flames of the CHRISTITE spirit alive. Change has been the only catalyst that has brought success to the Institution. With change have come the initiative, dynamism, thirst for knowledge and the pursuit of excellence that was always the hallmark of CHRIST (Deemed to be University). We are steadily marching forward to embrace a new milieu of responsibilities and a shared vision of the CHRIST fraternity.

To quote Wilhelm Von Humboldt, “ Besides the pleasure derived from acquired knowledge, there lurks in the mind of man, and tinged with a shade of sadness, an unsatisfactory longing for something beyond the present, a striving towards regions yet unknown and unopened.” I believe that it is this longing for the unknown and the thirst for the unopened that motivates all of us “To strive, to seek and not to yield.” (Tennyson). The institution is moving towards another promising phase of growth and I urge the entire CHRIST fraternity to put their best foot forward and take the Institution to greater heights.

And hence, CU-BGR Campus has kept alive and more, the 'festing' culture, and through the various ingenious fests, offers cultural platforms to the students to thrive and flourish. The Christ University Business Studies and Social Sciences Association (CUBSA) that functions under the aegis of CU-BGR Campus is instrumental to a great extend in encouraging and promoting students to explore and showcase their talents, get into the culture of knowledge application, and hone their skills by managing them through co-curricular and extra-curricular activities. This year CUBSA successfully flagged off Querencia, the National-Level, Multidisciplinary, Mega Fest of CU-BGR Campus. Entailing a diversity that is one of a kind and a vision that is far more sighted than any other event witnessed in the world of festing, Querencia celebrated the reality of collaboration in competition thereby moving towards bridging disciplines from across colleges and universities in the country. Through Querencia, CUBSA was able to offer a common arena to individuals from across disciplines to gather together and exhibit their talents. The Campus came alive with a plethora of discipline-specific fests, be it Arthotsav of Economics Studies, Gobblefunk of English Studies, Raabta of Media Studies, Aaroha of Psychology Studies, and Dialogue of History and Political Science, from within the sphere of Social Sciences. From the stable of Management Studies came Genesis, Inferno, and Novice, while Tourism Studies redesigned Alta Vista, Ontrack, Jharokha and Exodus. Fests, like Bob the Builder, a bid and build competition and the Marketing fest, Marketon offered good opportunities for students to come up with different business plans and get a hands-on real-life experience in the business-world. This year, the Cell organized the first edition of The Speakers' Conclave, a flagship event that focused on offering a platform to pioneer speakers from different walks of life to share the stories of their journeys. Of these, Darpan was organized as the first deanery-level talent-hunt event for the students in the Campus. Organized by the Student Welfare Office (SWO) of the Campus, Darpan was an "ice-breaker" especially for the First-Year Students by exposing them to the University culture of not just nurturing but also celebrating talent. Darpan was followed in a similar vein by Blossoms, the inter-deanery fest that fostered strong bonds of camaraderie within the Campus, considering how the entirety of School of Business Studies and Social Sciences was in competition against the other deaneries in the national-level, inter-university fest, In-bloom. CENTRE FOR SOCIAL ACTION (CSA)

CHRIST (Deemed to be University), since its inception 1969, has strived for using 'education as a tool for development'. This concept has and will continue to contribute to the institute's growth to greater heights. CSA, which began in 1999, is the centre that is spearheading this mission to its fullest.

CSA has been promoting volunteerism and enabling students to develop as socially responsible citizens by involving them in social development initiatives both in campuses and marginalized communities. It envisions that every student will be aware, sensitive and empathetic and contributing to sustainable changes in the society.

Apart from student programmes, child-centered and integrated development initiatives in urban, rural and tribal areas and waste management efforts, this year witnessed new activities. They include:

Rural Exposure Camps/Visits: Being a strategically important programme, this is conducted as an attempt to make social responsibility a culture among all students in the University by exposing them to the socio-economic and cultural situations of the rural communities and students are involved in the socio-economic development of these marginalized areas.

During the year, 39 rural visits for students, CSA volunteers and faculty and members of international institutes were conducted in places like Hoskote, Srinivasapura and urban slums. Around 2200 students and faculty participated in these visits. The international institutions were VID University, Zurich University, Han University, Bodo University and University Studies Abroad Consortium (USAC). Some of these students interned in CSA.

Campus Based Activities: CSA volunteers conducted a discussion on "Patriot or a Global Citizen: Which way is the right way?", Sustainability Week and Social Responsibility Week. Through the discussions and events, the students deliberated on issues of hunger, climate change, sustainability, exclusiveness, health and environmental degradation. Events like talks, workshops and poetry marked the occasions and several non-governmental organizations contributed to their learning. The students internalized social responsibility values as a result.

INTERVIEW WITH
DR IVEN JOSE

Associate Dean, Faculty of Engineering, Kengeri Campus.

Dr Iven Jose has successfully driven the Faculty of Engineering to National and International renown. He is a recipient of many awards and patents and in this interview, he discloses his working philosophy and vision for life, work and success.

Q What motivated you to get into the field of teaching after completing your PhD in Engineering from IIT?

The whole process of teaching and learning is what I consider very dear to me, primarily I hold my academics and my experience in the industrial field, but at some point of time, I realised that more than doing monotonous jobs it would be more helpful to society, if I contributed in the areas of teaching, learning and research and especially research. So, the journey began from IIT Bombay, after I completed my PhD, I became an employee in one of the premiere private organisation called BITS Pilani. I served there for almost 4 years and thereafter joined CHRIST, because faculty of Engineering was at the inception stage and they had a vision which was similar to my concept which was something different and that's where I thought the entire time and effort that I have put in studying and coming to this level can directly culminate in, an area where I can give my services to the society.

Q How was your teaching experience in Melbourne?

I was selected under the scholarship for United Board, the University was kind enough in recommending my name and I got the selection from the Board and this was a period of 1 year for the academic year 2016-2017, for which I was there at Boston College for almost 1 month. During my stay at Boston there were sessions which were conducted at GLI (Global leadership institute), sessions held in Harvard University and at several premiere organisations around Boston. As part of this programme there is a requirement that they provide placement in one of the Asia – Pacific areas and I was selected at Melbourne University, during my stay there for 2 months in Melbourne University I was teaching there. That's the 2 months' time frame that I spend at the Melbourne University.

Q What kind of subjects did you deal with, at Melbourne University?

It was more to do with the signal processing and signal and systems, these are the areas I have specialised in and those were the areas I was asked to associate with the department in delivering the classes and laboratory sessions.

Q You have put across this concept of 'future academic exchange and collaborative research', can you elaborate on that?

This is more to do with the research conducted at the UG and PG levels and synergising between the Universities in India and abroad. The paradigm is shifting, the conventional way of teaching, learning and research confining themselves to four walls or restricted to research articles being published in journals has changed. We must come out to state that universities should be more focused on researches which are locally identified and then incubate and implement those research ideas for social upliftment. In this regard we have instituted a cell called engineering service assisted integrated learning. This is the area that we are looking forward to, for young talents go out into the society, look out for the areas where we need to interface, bring those problems back to the university, create a component of innovation, there is only a thin line between service learning concept and service assisted integrity concept. This is one of the initiatives that we have done and I think this will take us a long way through in terms of identifying UG and PG research and this will be the next level transformation and I call it, the new generation pedagogy for research and development

Q How do you think it worked out in the Indian Scenario?

In India quite often you have students being pressured by their peers and parents to take up professional courses like engineering, medicine, architectures etc. but they never give due consideration to the candidate. What is she/he interested in? What we do at Faculty of Engineering is that we run a 3 weeks course- it's a kind of an 'experience engineering' programme- and some students who have gone through it, they have identified that engineering is not their forte and have even moved out. So, it's kind of a realisation that we give to them, that in this field it is more important to know your area without any peer pressure, that you have the freedom to go ahead and pursue what you really intend to do.

Q Was this concept successful in Melbourne?

Yes, very much successful back in Melbourne. While this concept was being conceived out there, I wanted to bring this concept to the Indian scenario to see if this could be implemented. But, there are cultural differences between Australia and India, we need to bridge this. In the Indian scenario the peer and parental pressures for a student is tremendous, we need to look at how it can be subdued, if there is a way we could bring it up and tell them. To me, it was more important to know the background and bring the parents into the loop. The only way, while they are in Engineering and in these 4 years, you can make a difference, is in the way they learn. By moving out of being bookish, have some real time projects given to them where they become a part and parcel of executives and they realise that it is not just big packets that they would earn in the form of salary, but that, there is a contribution required of them back to society, If this realisation gets in, then, we will achieve what we want to in the realm of education.

Q Talking about your work in the field of research and the books published, we find that it mostly focuses on breast cancer, what made you do a detailed study in this field?

The journey began when I was working in Siemens. I hail from Goa; therefore I was working with Siemens Goa. I was put along with 2 other members on a project, to be completed in 8 months flat. My task as a programmer was to come out with an image processing tool. We completed the project in 8 months successfully. I was however after this, not much interested and thought the work to be monotonous. I moved out of it into the research field when I got admitted to IIT Powai, there when the projects rolled out, I was still looking forward to the area that I should start working towards, and by the second year I was given an opportunity to work in the area of imaging which was fairly a broad area. That is where we were given the opportunity to hunt for problems in society, look at understanding major causes of breast cancer and see whether there are people who are deprived of early detection support and tools which were rare in the Indian market. When we looked at the statistics, we saw that no early detection of breast cancer numbers was available and in the near future by 2020- 2025, this could be one of the major diseases in the Indian as well as the Asia Pacific population. There were no tools which identified breast cancer at its inception or early stage. We were successful in devising a dye, a contrast agent and we worked in a different area altogether which doesn't exist at the moment in the market. In the market we have imagers called MRI (magnetic resonance imaging), CT scan (computer tomography) and mammograms; these do not cater for any cysts or any cancerous lesions which are found at the infancy stage. Our study was looking at the infancy level even before the cellular level. The contrasting agent that we identified during the course of our study was linked functionally with a receptor called estrogen receptor and we were successful in synthesising, characterising, and bringing them to a level that worked in the living cell. The progress and development of our study and work went so well, that by the time we came up with the entire module, it got international acceptance and we filed a patent both in India as well as the US. While the US is under review, India just got published. Our aim down the line is to ensure that this tool becomes prominent among the crowd, and women who are susceptible, should detect this at the very infancy stage of the condition and take necessary steps to completely eliminate the cancer cells from their body.

Q How do you think one can provide the awareness amongst the crowd about this illness even if the product is being launched in the market?

We focus on generating awareness among people who aren't that well-read, that is where we concentrate more on the PHCs (primary healthcare centres). We intend to make some field visits to see whether general awareness could be spread, what are the common diseases that are identified, how important is it for them to understand the whole routine check-up etc., this is the plan. We plan to generate awareness through medical camps. What we have done is not directly linked to this project, yet we have adopted one village which is very close to our campus close to Bidadi and our intentions are to provide health check up to 70 households and to ensure the primary tests and results from ECG, BP, sugar, could be given to them in the form of a record to generate awareness on how their health should be improved. Otherwise in the hospitals, 20-30 % elite crowd are well read, they know the significance of routine health check-ups and would take preventive measures to ensure that no fatality takes place.

Q You received an award for the outstanding young faculty award by Microsoft India for your research work, how did that come along?

Yes, I was conferred with the young scientist award back in 2008 that was when I was in BITS, Pilani. This was a contribution that was recognised by Microsoft India, and they awarded me with the young scientist award. I was one among the 25 people who were selected to give a presentation on the nuances in the medical field and I was called to give a presentation at the Bangalore office of Microsoft India in front of the jury.

Q You recently received an award for your concepts in the field of engineering, kindly share your experience.

This was a company called Roches Company. It is a young innovation scientist company and it is more into CIO (certification for innovation officer). They are a New York based company; they look out for distinguished engineers. The award I received was for the work that was implemented at the Faculty of Engineering and contribution not only in just engineering alone but also in the multidisciplinary areas that we work in.

Q What will be your message for the future generation?

There are several youngsters who are looking at jobs in India and abroad and looking out for big fat salaries. I wouldn't say that one should not go after it, yes: money is important for everybody. There are many responsibilities also that these youngsters have in terms of contributing back to the society. One thing they should realise is that, if they have been working or studying in institutions like CHRIST, they are fortunate for service becomes part of their academic DNA. But there are several less fortunate people who could not get into institutions, it becomes their duty to go down to them and help them out in bringing up their life station and giving a better opportunity for them to perform well in their life, in whichever areas they wish to prosper in. I also feel that there should be people coming back to India promoting such institutions and start-ups, thereby our own students and our own fraternity will grow and literally help India grow much beyond our expectations. If we do that, the next 10-15 years is going to see our rise and no one can beat us. This is my vision for young India.

BASHA UTSAV & ETHNIC DAY

With its regional, national and international approach, CHRIST (Deemed to be University) occupies a unique place among all the higher educational institutions in India. Here, rigorous academic and professional training go hand in hand with healthy and meaningful living. A globally known centre for excellence with students teachers, staff from all corners of India and abroad. The University gives a new dimension to cultural pluralism. Rising above parochial tendencies of religion, caste, creed or language, our achievements can be attributed to our professionalism and commitment.

With the intension of sustaining this spirit formally and informally, the Department of Languages takes pride in showcasing the rich Indian cultural heritage; its dynamism and vibrancy, and its power to unique people. This is the spirit behind Bhasha Utsav that is celebrated during the month of September of every year. Beginning with an ethnic procession led by Vice Chancellor and the faculty followed by representations from the different countries and states, the day was filled with folk performances by students and professional folk artists which saw Christites outfitted in all their ethnicity oscillating to the sound of music.

RECTOR'S DAY AND CHRISTMAS CELEBRATIONS

CHRIST (Deemed to be University) has a tradition where the entire community of teaching and non-teaching Christites come together to celebrate an evening of bonhomie and camaraderie. This academic year, the celebrations were held on Wednesday, December 20 2018. This celebration brought the community together to offer gratitude to our Rector and Chancellor, Dr Fr George Edayadiyil, for his guidance and leadership and provided an opportunity to celebrate Christmas and mark the festive season.

This year too, to celebrate the spirit of Love, Fellowship and Togetherness during the Christmas season, the organizing committee had planned several fun-filled activities such as the ever popular Dance face off, and the group cultural event. There were eight team clusters representing the various deaneries and campuses of CHRIST (Deemed to be University). The teams drawn from Administration, Bannerghatta Campus, Commerce, CUFE, Humanities and Social Sciences, Management and IMCU, School of Law and Sciences competed for the coveted prizes.

The Faculty of Engineering secured the first place while the Deanery of Humanities and Social Sciences bagged the second place and the third place went to the BGR campus. A total sum of Rs 50,000 was awarded to the winning teams thanks to the generosity of the Alumni Association of CHRIST (Deemed to be University) headed by Mr. Jugnu Uberoi. The evening came to an end with the customary exchange of gifts and a sumptuous dinner which marked the beginning of the festive season and brought great cheer and fellowship.

Afterword

Imagine an exquisitely carved 50 inches of Ivory tusk. The polished lustre of each scrimshaw layered up to the crown of the curve like moonlight. To the beholder it tells stories like the Keatsian vase, stories of you and me and everybody else. The stories of aspirations and frustrations, of starting points, breaking points and end points, of tears of sadness, cheers of joy and sighs of limbo gloom, of battles fought and won and peace restored and harmony sustained. This is CHRIST in its glorious, Golden Jubilee year- the fifty years of productive and meaningful existence in Indian Higher education.

Every year, our team of editors, designers, photographers, and correspondents, generate creative content and work hard to report on events in and around the Institution. The final publication reflects and encompasses the diversity inherent in the academic and extra-curricular spaces in CHRIST. One of the most interesting things about CHRIST is the broad diversity of its brain power. At one end of the campus we have the vibrant Department of Physics and brilliant researchers probing the origins of the universe and on the other end the Department of Music deciphering the musical notes of the cosmos and in between the play of many disciplines and epistemes. If epistemic violence is what drives a scholar on a quest to seek answers, CHRIST scholars have it in plenty. That is perhaps the success mantra of the Institution.

CHRIST (Deemed to be University), May your tribe increase!

As always a big shout out to all the Departments, Centres and Offices who stood by us to make CHRISTITE 2018 a reality.
